Recommendation

With 11,313 OPI minutes per period driving 97.7% of your $9,845 bill, the OPI rate is the only number that materially matters. Voiance's $0.85/min is well below retail pay-as-you-go rates ($1.99–$3.95/min), but it is meaningfully above what the same vendor — CyraCom/Voiance — has publicly bid on government contracts ($0.57–$0.69/min), which signals real negotiating room at your volume. The Propio acquisition of CyraCom (July 2025) and the PropioOne transition deadline (December 2025) create a rare contract re-paperying moment: use it. Request a meeting with your Propio account team, cite your 11,000+ monthly minutes, reference CyraCom's Texas DIR OPI rate of $0.57/min as a benchmark, and push for a committed-minute subscription tier in the $0.65–$0.70/min range — a realistic ask that could save $1,700–$2,300 per period without changing vendors or service quality. On ASL, Voiance's $0.85/min is genuinely exceptional (market rates run $1.25–$4.95/min), so do not sacrifice it in the negotiation; hold it as a given. Finally, require Propio to include third-party/3-way calling at no extra charge in the new agreement — every public CyraCom contract reviewed listed it as free, and the $0.18/min charge has no public precedent.
